

Architectural Documentation

Accurate and clear construction documentation is an essential but often challenging part of any successful project. Mobilising a large team at later project stages can be costly and time-consuming and often distracts a practice from their core focus of designing. Atlas makes the process less of a burden by providing a flexible team of documentation specialists who can efficiently translate the original design intent into quality drawings.

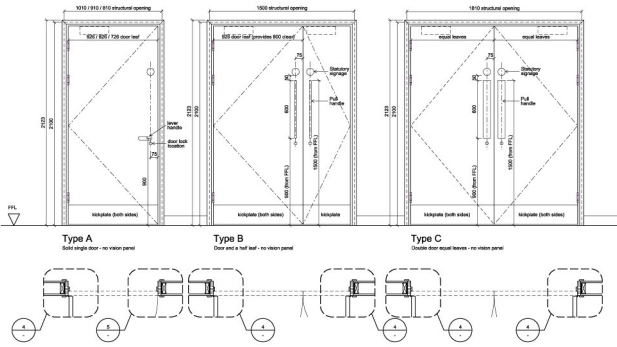

Following best practice protocols, we form a seamless extension to the project team. With minimal management required, our clients maintain full control of the delivery process while enjoying the benefits of reduced risks, increased profitability and enhanced capacity and quality.
